Before school was out for the summer, members of the Seminole Ridge High Student Government Association gave planners to the teachers and staff in appreciation of their hard work and support. Displaying the planners were members of SGA (from left) Ireland Ruiz, Morgan Doran, Brandon Domaceti and Erica Ward.

As part of GL Homes Summer of Service, employees and their children made volunteering a family affair at the Lewis Center in West Palm Beach. Serving homeless clients a hot dinner and making a brown bag lunch for the next day were (from left) Gavin Paradise, Jaden Paradise, James Paradise and Jack Yates.

Having a great day at the second annual Literacy Links Golf Tournament were (from left) Judith Jokiel; Donna Brown, who made a hole-in-one; Linda Reichenstein; and Stevie Davenport. About 40 players participated in the fundraiser, held at the Palm Beach Par 3 course, and raised $20,000 for the Literacy Coalition of Palm Beach County.

Entertain, enlighten during road trips with 'Wow in the World,' 'The Walk'

Gatehouse News Service

Taking a summer road trip is an annual ritual for many people.

Packing up the car with everything you might need while you're away, filling up the tank and hitting the road with your family or a group of friends can be one of life's great adventures. Although road trips create lifelong memories and experiences, there are usually many, many miles traveled in between those memorable destinations.

To help you pass the time, here are some podcasts to listen to.

'Wow in the World'

When you're traveling with children, the "Wow in the World" podcast is a family-friendly show all ages will enjoy. Supported by National Public Radio, "Wow" is an educational kids' show co-hosted by Guy Raz and Mindy Thomas.

Raz and Thomas help children learn about black holes, artificial intelligence and supergerms. Recent episodes include "How To Talk to a Dog," "Somefin Smells Fishy in Here!" and "The Very Hungry Black Hole."

'The Unexplainable Disappearance of Mars Patel'

"The Unexplainable Disappearance of Mars Patel" is a scripted mystery series performed by middle-schoolers. Entertaining for youngsters and adults, the first two seasons revolve around Mars Patel's quest to find two buddies who have gone missing.

Season 3 is currently in the works. Each episode is about 15 minutes long.

'The Walk'

Although "The Walk" podcast is aimed at walkers, a road trip can work just as well in this thriller in which in the listener plays the part of the hero.

Because of a mistaken identity, you (the listener) are given a package that must be delivered to Edinburgh. The train you are supposed to board suddenly explodes and then you must walk there, being followed by the terrorists who blew up the train.

Along the way, other characters join in the chase with their own motives. Each episode is about 20 minutes long.

'LeVar Burton Reads'

For the millions of people that grew up with "Reading Rainbow" and then later "Star Trek: The Next Generation," LeVar Burton's voice is iconic.

In "LeVar Burton Reads," the actor selects a short fiction story each week and reads it. The podcast is in its second season and features stories including "Black Betty," "Money Tree" and "As Good as New."
